

CLEVELAND IS CHEERED AS HE PRAISES PARKER

Former President Receives Remarkable Ovation at the Great Democratic Mass Meeting at Carnegie Hall When He Speaks for Candidates.

The inspiration that comes from a vigorous personality was present in the business men's meeting for Democrats in Carnegie Hall last night. The leaves of cheer and aggressiveness that the speech of former President Cleveland injected into the hearts of those Democrats who had the good fortune to be within reach of his voice is being felt to an extremely hopeful degree to-day.

The peculiar magnetism that makes Grover Cleveland the idol of the Democratic masses was strikingly apparent at the meeting. Long before he entered there were concerted stretching of necks every time the door leading from the eastern side of the stage was opened to admit any of the guests.

"Here he comes!" would be murmured throughout the immense rows of seats and boxes, to be followed by a wave of disappointed "No." Then whatever silence there might be was taken out in listening to the musical jangling of a high-class band that thundered forth its standard "Arrangements" in the most approved mass-meeting style.

Audience Mostly Business Men. And the audience was not of that peculiar class that goes to a political gathering and is described by irreverent persons as "star-chasers." A glance at the four hundred men on the platform and those who helped to fill the great house throughout disabused one's mind of the impression that there were present the ordinary seekers after the pleasure to be derived by eating at a notable political character or the satisfaction of having the power to boast that they had been at the big Carnegie Hall meeting.

Instead, there were present hundreds of business men who have helped to make New York the greatest center of commercial activity in all the world, and who, nevertheless, find the time and inclination to participate in a gathering convened to grapple with what is considered a serious crisis in the political affairs of the country.

When finally the unmistakable activity at the little side door on the stage told of the entry of some person of more than usual consequence there was a roar from those who filled the western half of the house which was in the line of sight. The roar was understood by the men and women throughout the other arrays of seats, and it swelled in volume until the union of humans from five thousand throats, the tramping of ten thousand feet and the clapping of thousands of pairs of hands made a scene and a din that can be witnessed only at one of those dramatically tense periods of political activity when a winning candidate is named at a national convention.

Hard to Stop the Cheers. It was in vain that J. Hampden Robb, the temporary chairman, waved his hands aloft, just like Joe Herbert does in his characteristic imitations of hysterical Frenchmen. No one seemed to care for Mr. Robb or his signals. The men just roared harder and the women waved their handkerchiefs and fans more vigorously as the speaker came.

BIG RUSH TO REGISTER TO-DAY

Figures of 1900 Are Beaten All Over the City in the Early Hours, Nearly Every District Showing a Gain in Numbers. 573,571 VOTERS WERE ENROLLED IN THREE DAYS.

New York City Showed an Increase of 33,000 Over the Figures for Last Presidential Election.

In spite of the rain of yesterday the registration was heavier in every borough than that of 1900. To-day, being bright and fair, is expected to bring out an exceptionally heavy registration in all districts and to swell the total for four days to a much larger figure than has ever been registered before, not eliminating that of the last Presidential year in 1900.

Evidence of this was shown in the first two hours of registration to-day in many districts, where the registration was heavy enough to warrant a large increase before the booths were closed at 10 o'clock (standard time).

This was especially true in the Republican districts of the Nineteenth and Twenty-first Assembly Districts on the upper West Side, where a heavy registration was polled. The large increase in these districts this year is laid to the fact that a large number of apartment houses have been opened in that section of the city, and they have caused necessarily a considerable increase in the population.

In the Fifteenth Assembly District, a Democratic stronghold directly south of the two Republican districts mentioned, the registration was light. This district registered a heavy vote on the other three days, and Senator G. W. Plunkitt, the Democratic leader, said he expected a heavy registration this afternoon and especially after 6 o'clock to-night, because a majority of the voters of the district are workmen.

Heavy at All Points. The same heavy registration is reported all over the city this morning. The Fifth Assembly District, young Van Cott's, where there have been many challenges and counter-charges of colonization and all sorts of trouble, had a light registration early in the morning, but later it picked up, and the same heavy registration as in the other districts was expected before the closing hour.

As compared with the third day's registration in 1900, each of the boroughs in the greater city shows an increased registration. Manhattan leads in the gains, but Brooklyn and Queens also show a marked increase.

35,000 Gain Thus Far. In the entire city the total gain over the first three days of 1900 is about 35,000. Nearly 125,000 more voters have registered than during the first three days of 1900, when a gubernatorial election was to be held.

The downtown districts show a heavy falling off as compared with four years ago, and both the Twenty-fifth and the Twenty-seventh, two of the Republican strongholds, also are hundreds below their registration in the last Presidential campaign. The Republican Nineteenth, however, shows an increase of about 20,000, and the Twenty-first a gain of about 1,000.

The Twenty-third, an east side district into which many of the voters have moved from downtown, shows an increase over 1900 of about 5,000. The Democratic Brooklyn districts also show heavy gains.

The gains in Brooklyn are divided almost equally between the Republican and Democratic districts.

Canvass Shows the Election of Parker. The Democratic National Committee will on Monday make public the result of a canvass it has made of every State in the Union. The canvass, according to those at National Headquarters to-day, show without doubt the election of Judge Parker. The Committee has been waiting for a report from Chairman Taggart, who went to Indiana early in the week, on the exact conditions in that State before giving out the full result of the canvass. This report was received to-day over the long-distance telephone by De Lancy Nicoll and it is a very optimistic one.

"Indiana is ours," said Mr. Taggart. "The State will surely go Democratic." It was impossible to get the complete result of the canvass to-day, but in addition to the solid South some of the States which will be absolutely claimed by the Democrats are: Maryland, West Virginia, Delaware, New York, New Jersey, Indiana, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming and Connecticut.

Every one of these States save Colorado and Montana went for McKinley in 1900. There was a general feeling of confidence about National Headquarters to-day. Every body was delighted with the canvass shown at the Cleveland meeting last night. Sixteen more clerks were dropped from the payroll to-day, their work being done.
